Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Keep gift receipts organized

A relatively recent component of holiday shopping -- or any shopping for that matter -- is the gift receipt. Keeping gift receipts organized can take a little effort on the part of the shopper to ensure each gift recipient is in possession of their respective receipts.

Gift receipts are advantageous to people who are receiving presents. Should the item not fit or be a duplicate of something they already have, a gift receipt enables them to return the item effortlessly. It also clearly indicates where the gift was purchased so one is not driving around trying to find the store for a return. Plus, should the item have been recently reduced in price, a gift receipt will allow the full value of the gift to be received.

Returning an item without a receipt could result in lost value and the sale price being rescinded. Although having a gift receipt will not entitle one to a cash refund, it will equate to a store credit in the amount of the original price purchased.

Keeping gift receipts organized may take a little trial and error. One idea is to keep two envelopes and a pen handy when shopping. Write the names of the gift recipients on the master receipt or put their initials beside their purchased items. Place those receipts in one envelope where you'll keep your copies of the receipts. On the gift receipts, write the names for whom the gifts are intended. Place those receipts in the other envelope that will hold all gift receipts.

When it comes time to wrap gifts, refer to your gift receipt envelope and match up the receipts to the correct gift. Remember, the gift receipt will not display the price or sometimes even a product description. It will usually only have a bar code that will refer to a UPC, or product number. You may be able to match the receipt to the number on the product tag. But again, this is why writing the name of the person on the receipt at the time of purchase can make the process easier. Attach the receipt to the gift in some way and wrap.

Safe Ways To Set Up Your Home

Heeding a few hints from the experts at the Electrical Safety Foundation International can help you have a beautiful home for the holidays and a safer and happier new year:

- If you are purchasing new decorations, shop only at reputable retailers that you trust.
- Make sure your decorations have been approved for safe use by a nationally recognized testing laboratory.
- Always follow the manufacturer's instructions that accompany your decorations.
- Carefully inspect each electrical decoration and extension cord before use; discard any damaged items. Cracked sockets, bare or frayed wires, and loose connections may cause a serious shock or fire.
- Never connect more than three strands of incandescent lights together to make a longer string.
- Consider getting LED lights, which use less power and burn cooler than traditional incandescents, allowing you to safely connect more sets.
- Avoid overloading electrical outlets, which can overheat and start a fire.
- Don't pinch cords in windows or doorways or under heavy furniture.

- Keep cords out of walkways and high-traffic areas.
- If you get a live Christmas tree, check it for freshness. A fresh tree will stay green longer and is less of a fire hazard than a dry tree.
- Heated rooms dry out even fresh trees quickly. Be sure to keep the stand filled with water.
- For artificial trees, look for a "fire-resistant" label.
- Put the tree at least three feet away from all heat sources, including fireplaces and space heaters.
- Decorate your tree with non-combustible or flame-resistant materials.
- Avoid using candles when possible. Consider using battery-operated candles in place of traditional candles.
- When decorating outside, make sure all decorations and extension cords are marked for outdoor use.
- Always use a ground fault circuit interrupter (GFCI)-protected outlet outdoors.
- Exercise extreme caution when decorating near overhead power lines. Use a wooden or fiberglass ladder instead of metal. Keep yourself and your equipment at least 10 feet from power lines.
- Outdoor extension cords and lights should be kept clear of standing water and snow.
- Remember to turn off and unplug all decorations before leaving home or turning in for the night.
- Learn more at <http://holidaysafety.org> or (703) 841-3229.

Tips On Shopping For High-Tech Gifts

When shopping for a high-tech holiday gift, it pays to know before you go. Doing your homework prior to shopping can pay dividends when it comes to price, features and satisfaction.

For example, if you're buying a smartphone as a gift, make sure you know whether the carrier has good coverage where it'll be used. Also, check out the different data plans that each carrier offers.

When shopping for a new HDTV, the model you select should reflect the taste and viewing habits of the person who will use it.

It's also important to have a backup plan. For instance, a tablet device may turn out to be a better gift for someone you originally thought would want a laptop.

For help with these kinds of buying decisions, consumers often turn to their friends, family or sites such as CNET (www.cnet.com). With videos, comparisons, links to retailers and more, CNET's reviews have information that can help with holiday shopping. The site even has a How To section to help users get the most out of their new devices.

Gift ideas for the family sports fan

Sports fans are a unique breed of people who range from avid devotees to casual observers. Come the holiday season, perhaps no gift is more appropriate for a sports fan than something that makes the big game that much better. This holiday season, shoppers searching for the right gift for their sports-crazed love ones might consider the following gift ideas.

Take tailgating to new heights

Though the games themselves are important, sports fans will admit the camaraderie they feel with their fellow fans is a big part of their love of sports. And nowhere makes a better place to build those bonds with fellow fans than the pregame tailgate. This holiday season, make that tailgate even more enjoyable for your favorite sports fan with a new grill or deep fryer. Deep fryers come in many shapes and sizes, be it ones best suited to side dishes and smaller meals, or larger fryers that enable tailgaters to cook up some fried chicken or even a popular staple like deep fried turkey the whole parking lot can enjoy.

For those who tailgate and have all the tools and gadgets they need, don't overlook food for your favorite tailgater. A box of gourmet steaks can go a long way on a cold afternoon before the big game, and any veteran tailgater knows there's no such thing as too much food.

Tickets to the big game

For those sports nuts routinely relegated to the couch during their favorite team's games, perhaps no gift is more appropriate than tickets to a sports arena. Even if money is tight and tickets seem costly, shoppers can take advantage of a host of ways to purchase tickets at below-market costs. For example, many professional teams now allow their season ticket holders to sell their tickets to games right through the team's Web site. Tickets might be discounted as ticket holders attempt to recoup some of their money for games they simply can't attend.

Another option when looking for affordable tickets is to peruse the Internet for Web sites like www.StubHub.com, where ticket seekers can often find discounted tickets to some of their favorite sporting events. In addition, peruse the local newspaper classifieds to see if anyone in your area is selling tickets. It's often not as difficult as it might seem to find discounted tickets to even the most popular sporting events.

Get personal

Sports apparel has never been more popular, and no true fan can do without some gear that professes his or her love for a favorite team. This holiday season go the extra mile by personalizing a jersey for the sports fan in your life. His or her first or last name embroidered across the back of a favorite team's jersey is the ultimate way for sports fans to show just how connected they are to their favorite team.

For those who want to go even further, contact a loved one's favorite team to see if there's any way to make the connection even more personal. For example, some teams sell bricks on walkways outside their home stadium and fans can engrave a personal message on the bricks, forever connecting them with their favorite teams.

Bring it home

Nowadays, many sports fans find themselves living far away from their favorite teams. New York natives living in California might have no way to watch their favorite Big Apple teams do battle and might be relegated to reading about their favorite players' exploits in the morning newspaper. For shoppers who truly want to please their favorite sports fans this holiday season, consider purchasing them a subscription package that enables them to see their favorite team play regardless of where they live. MLB Extra Innings(R) and NFL Sunday Ticket™ are just two of the more popular options that allow sports fans to see every game their favorite sport has to offer.

This holiday season, make your favorite sports fan that much more enthusiastic with a gift that further strengthens his or her bond with a favorite team.
